'Twas the night night before New Years and climbing the stair, her calves how they flexed, bulged , and swelled, oh,
what a pair!

DELETED
SCENES

To the bedroom she went tiptoeing with care, meaty calf wings jutting out from her shins, oh, what a pair!

SCENES

Away to the fireplace she strutted with flare, legs rippling with striated veiny muscle , oh, what a pair!

SCENES

No stockings were hung by the chimney to air, her huge calves had ripped and shredded them all, oh, what a pair!

DELETED SCENES

Taking a seat on the arm of a green parlor chair, she crossed arms over ample breasts oh, what a pair!

SCENES

She stood at her bedside and stretched to compare, the size of her breasts and calves, oh, what a pair!

DELETED SCENES

Pondering the blessings
that made her quite fair, bulging muscles, enormous
breasts and massive calves,
oh, what a pair!

SCENES

She climbed onto the bed and before falling asleep one wish she made there, give her the most muscular calves ever, oh, what a pair.

DELETED SCENES

So as she walked by they'd shout from the rooftops compelled to declare, look at those huge muscular calves, oh, what a pair!

DELETED SCENES

Oh! What a pair!
