

Xanadu Emporium

(Part 1)

Novus Peregrine

Tara looked up at the sound of the shop chime, alerting her to new customers. She felt Roxy looking up as well, even as she plastered on a 'customer-service' smile for their newest clients, playing up her current appearance by adding a cheerful wave.

“Hiya! Welcome to Xanadu Emporium! The pleasure paradise where you can find everything you need for all your erotic dreams!”

Tara honestly felt that the greeting still needed a bit of workshopping...but then again, they'd only just got the store up and running a few weeks ago. They hadn't even been able to hire staff yet, forcing Roxy and Tara to run the shop almost entirely on their own. Though it was at least sometimes a bit more fun than working the reception desk at the Elysium Transformation Clinic had been. Tara was quite happy to see the back of that duty. Even if she still wasn't exactly enthused about customer-facing work in general. At least here, she was mostly just a model for...fun things.

The new customers goggled bit at Tara's rather revealing outfit...but they were both Rill and quickly got over any surprise. The female of the pair had such similar markings to Melxitra that they almost had to be from the same clan, though this Rill had chosen some different transformations. In fact, her cat-ears looked like they were almost certainly the result of a visit to Mel over at the clinic. That was an excellent sign, as it meant these were likely serious clients, rather than window shoppers. The fact that both were Rill was a nice bonus, one that had Tara relaxing a bit as she processed it. Rill were a lot more sexually open...which also meant they actually tended to be less creepy and prone to stalker-like comments and behavior. She'd already thoroughly had her fill of that sort of thing, despite the relatively small number of customers they'd seen so far.

It was the male Rill who replied to her initial greeting, his comment immediately making Tara relax farther still.

"Ah, I'm glad we found the right place! The doctor over at the Elysium Clinic recommended your shop when we mentioned we are new to the station and hadn't brought much of our playroom with us!"

Roxy, far more outgoing and comfortable with people, in pure spite of the stereotypes about hackers, was quick to pick up the thread. Rill 'playrooms' were basically rooms dedicated to whatever kinks a particular Rill, Rill couple, or Rill polycule were interested in. If these two were looking to reestablish an entire playroom, they might be their biggest clients all week!

"You've definitely found the right place, then! One of our owners is a Rill, so we're quite familiar with playroom setups! Why don't we take a look at some basics while you fill us in on your interests? Ah, and is this just for the two of you, or...?"

The female Rill smiled and answered.

"It will be Master Rixelata's playroom, but I'm his only current dedicated. The others of our previous group decided not to make the journey with us at this time. Part of the playroom's purpose will be to recruit others, though, of course."

The 'Master' beside her nodded cheerfully as Tara and Roxy took that in. Thankfully, they'd got a thorough course in Rill sexual norms from Melxitra, so they could parse what the woman had just said. The male Rill was a 'Master,' a dominant Rill who took on 'dedicated,' essentially Rill submissives that answered to him in the bedroom...or playroom since they were Rill. Usually a 'dedicated' was a bit more than that, a friend, confidant, and part of a Rill's personal network. But it was, to a Rill, still a step short of being in a true relationship, with there with no expectation of a dedicated being a permanent sub to a particular Rill Master. It was a differentiation that was sometimes hard for non-Rill to wrap their heads around...but Roxy and Tara understood it at least well enough to handle their needs. Something Roxy subtly indicated with her response.

"I see! Then I assume you'll be wanting to establish a theme? I can speak with Master Rixelata about that while you look over some staples with Tara here, perhaps?"

Both of them nodded, with the Master answering a moment later.

“That would be perfect. This one,” the man waved at the female Rill next to him, “is Tellaxa. She knows what sort of staples we need. If you could show us the way?”

With a quick ‘of course,’ Roxy closed the front entrance for the moment. With just the two of them, they weren’t advertising, and the front entrance would display an expected wait time for an appointment if anyone did drop by. Not all customers got this level of service, of course, but these two were clearly looking for more than a simple toy or two...

Tara led the way into the back, stopping among a number of display cases and turning to face their clients.

“This room has most of our staple gear! Toys of all types, along with some gear and outfit essentials. Tellaxa, if you’ll join me? I can help you find whatever essentials you’re looking for!”

The female Rill nodded, separating from her Master with a quick kiss. Her Master looked on approvingly, clearly appreciating that they were handling this like fellow Rill, and then moved a few paces away to talk things over with Roxy even as Tellaxa joined Tara...

It quickly became apparent that Tellaxa was well-versed in toys and gear of all types. Tara might have felt like she was the learner here if not for the fact that the Xanadu Emporium offered quite a few new toys that they'd copied over from examples taken out of Silas Station. This let Tara start out on a strong footing, showing off their line of advanced toys that couldn't be gotten anywhere else. Thankfully, this meant that by the time they moved on to the products that they stocked from other manufacturers, Tellaxa had already decided Tara knew her business. Between the two of them, they put together a fairly expansive bundle. The majority was made of 'old favorites' Tellaxa and her Master were already familiar with, but a solid sprinkling of 'exciting new options,' filled out the rest of the order. Tara had been happy enough to go over her own experiences with each one, providing a good reference point for the other woman on best-uses. Mel and Roxy had certainly taken their time 'testing' each new product on Tara, after all. So she had quite a bit of first-hand knowledge...as well as the feedback from her lovers on each item as well.

Just as they wrapped things up, Roxy and Tellaxa's Master joined them, with Roxy quietly informing Tara that the duo are primarily looking for 'exhibition devices.' Apparently, not only is bondage and being on display one of Tellaxa's kinks, but the right kind of devices serve as excellent recruiting tools. As well as 'entertaining' tools for when Rixelata had guests of various types. Roxy quickly outlines what she'd decided to show off and Tara had to agree they are good choices. The fact that she's going to 'have' to show them off doesn't exactly hurt. While she's not quite an exhibitionist, she does enjoy the bondage portion and it can be a bit of a turn on being watched...

Taking the lead again, Tara guided everyone to the first, most basic offering. Getting into sales mode, she made her pitch.

“The Exhibitor Frame is a staple for the theme you’re going with. While simple, that simplicity is also its strength. The Exhibitor acts primarily as a framing piece for the use of other items. It puts a helpless body on display, while maintaining the comfort of the bound individual as much as possible. In their exposed state, any number of other items can be used to ‘play’ with them. They do say that seeing is believing, however, so with Mistress Roxy’s help...”

Roxy stepped forward even as Tara moved around the device. They had already practiced with every single item in the store, making it a swift process to get Tara bound into the frame, where Roxy takes over the sales pitch...

Grabbing a fairly standard 'wand' type vibrator, which trades a bit of bulk for a lot of power, Roxy brought it up to Tara's groin, pressing it into the thin C-string of Tara's uniform. She turned it on low...and even at that power Tara almost immediately began to moan, instinctively trying to squirm away...only to get absolutely nowhere due to The Exhibitor.

"As you can see, Tara is quite helpless to escape whatever fate is in store for her. Since this model includes a full 3-axis of movement adjustability, a wide variety of scenarios can be created using this single, versatile, frame. It can be raised, lowered or tipped. The cuffs all adjust and slide as well. Every material is made to a high standard, not just for safety, but also for comfort. Of particular note, the padding on all materials is fully rated for Rill. Something we've tested personally."

That last caused a spark of additional interest in their guests, who were clearly pleased with the frame. It is a basic piece, but as they asked questions and Roxy walks them through the mid-usage position shifts that can be made with the frame, the two are clearly pleased with it as a 'general use bondage frame' for their needs. Something they proved by ordering two of them to be added to their purchase before Tara was released. Pouting just a bit about Roxy leaving her unsatisfied, Tara lead them all onward on slightly shaky legs...

Reaching the next piece, this time their duo of clients takes a much more immediate interest. Tara grinned at their curious expressions and launched into a second sales pitch.

“A much more advanced piece...and one particularly suited for your long-term goals. Mistress Roxy has indicated that you want a multi-girl piece...and I can certainly recommend The Cradle as an excellent example of that! Much more high-tech than the Exhibitor, each toy can be individually controlled via a remote. And it is, obviously, truly intended for multi-girl usage. Indeed, I myself took part in a few competitions while testing this model. Since it’s fully equipped with medical sensors that can tell when someone cums, it’s ideal for a bit of competition on who can hold out longer...or last through the most climaxes!”

Tara paused, considered, then nodded. These two were Rill, so making the offer was obvious. And the fact that she was worked up from Roxy using that wand made it an easy offer from her perspective...

“Even more than the Exhibitor, this model truly shines when you get to fully see it in action. If you’re willing for Tellaxa to join me, I believe Mistress Roxy would be fine with letting you test it on the two of us?”

Clearly slightly surprised but pleased, Master Rixelata quickly nodded and ordered his dedicated to join Tara...

The Cradle is a significantly more complicated model, so Roxy quietly begins to talk over its features with Rixelata, remote in hand, while Tara helped Tellaxa into...and onto...the bondage device. She shivered a little at the eager moans of the Rill as the woman was double-penetrated, biting her lip in anticipation as those moans are muffled by the third toy gagging her with a thick shaft. A shaft specifically made to fully push into the throat, while still providing easy air via lightly pressurized holes. The pressure ensures that saliva and lube don't build up and block the breathing of the 'victim.' Of course, it's also possible for the experienced to breath through the nose despite the partial blockage of the throat...but the Cradle is designed to be safe for those without such advanced skills...

Roxy helped Tara onto the other half of the Cradle a minute or two later, removing her pasties and C-string in the process. The pasties aren't strictly necessary to remove...but it provides a better show. And with the feel of three thick shafts filling her up, Tara's wasn't about to complain...even if she wasn't effectively unable to because of one of those shafts...

Over the next twenty minutes, Rixelata proved to be a fast study, using each of the toys to tease and please both his own dedicated and Tara. Of course, Roxy made a subtly statement of possessiveness over Tara by playing with the rest of Tara's body as he does so...which almost makes Tara cum.

But only almost. She pouts as Rixelata sticks to teasing, leaving both her and his dedicated a bit frustrated. Roxy, at least, whispers a promise of a more fulfillment after they leave, if Tara is a good girl...

To aroused to care about covering herself again at this point, Tara tried to get back into 'sales' mode as she took the clients to the last device Roxy decided to show off...a high tech marvel created with a lot of bits and pieces from Silas Station. Tara is disappointed that she won't be the one to demo this one. Their original testing process was fun to say the least, during the design and development phase.

“And here, we have one of the Xanadu Emporium's own special creations. The Toy Box is one of our most advanced toys on your theme! Short of those that require nanite-integration or specific transformations, at least! Any girl lucky enough to be mounted in The Toy Box is in for a wild ride as those on the outside can use our fun, arcade-like controls to play with them to their heart's content! Would you care to have your dedicated give it a whirl, Master Rixelata?”

The extremely interested and very positive response was...predicable. And this model is actually easier to get the still-nude Tellaxa mounted into. The mounts are much more tech-oriented, using forcefields instead of mere cuffs. It is, Tara knew from experience, a very secure feeling, while actually being surprisingly supportive. Even after prolonged use, the worse Tara ever got was a tiny bit of numbness in her fingertips...and that was when she was stuck in one, arms over her head, for almost twenty hours while testing! Tellaxa made quite a few appreciative noises when she heard that story from Tara, as she's mounted into the Toy Box...

The next step is obvious. And Tara can't help but feel both a little jealous and very aroused as she watches Tellaxa's Master explore the extremely user-friendly controls of the Toy Box. Unlike the Cradle, with the Toy Box, they simply let him go wild, exploring all it's features. The Rill Master is enthralled enough that it's obvious they have a sale on their hands...particularly when he doesn't just let his dedicated cum...but actually forces her too. Multiple times. Of course, that does create a bit of a situation in his pants...and Tara looks pleadingly at Roxy. While she adores both Roxy and Mel...Tara still enjoys cock and doesn't get much of it these days. Roxy rolls her eyes, but makes the offer of 'hospitality' often offered by Rill Masters and Mistresses to visiting Masters...

Master Rixelata is so obviously pleased at the offer of Rill treatment from a pair of non-Rill, that Tara suspects they've just made a long-term client. Which she'll care about...eventually. Right now, she's just pleased to get her first taste of cock in several months. Sure, she'd prefer to get a proper fuck...but even just this is a nice change of pace. And from the noises he's making, she certainly hasn't lost her touch...

Once the two Rill customers leave, having made a big enough order to make their entire week's sales goal, Roxy wasted no time at all in locking the doors and pulling Tara into a kiss. Tara was a Good Girl, after all...so it's time for her reward. Not to mention that Roxy herself is likely horny as fuck after watching all of that! Tara leans into the kiss, content with how the day has gone...even if she still thinks they need to hire some help...

<<End Part 1 of The Xanadu Emporium>>