

Mc-Drain: “Super Sentai”

One idea I would like to see used at some point is "Super Sentai" (think Power Rangers).

Fin the Human: “Bimbovania”

The Countess rules to with her legion of vile monster(-girls) and it is up to a hero to storm her tower complex and put an end to her tyranny. All the monsters in the castle are bimbo monster girls of spooky variety e.g. Ghosts, ghouls, zombies, mummies, imps, succubus, the Bimm Reaper, etc etc and each encounter the hero may not walk out of unscathed probably looking more and more gradually bimbo-like or feminine or both (depending on if the hunter is a guy or girl)

Omerking 70: “The African Bimbo Tribe”

How about an African bimbo tribe who invade to big city and start to transforming people to African dark skin bimbo and made them join to the tribe by making with them sucking the king of the tribe his dick.

MBN: "Infectious Desire"

There is a plan to make all ones desires real. No more body-dismorphia. No more worry over age, sex, race, or nationality. You become your ideal self. and the source (magic fog or nano-bots) is released into the city. People become their ideal dream selves. But the effect isnt a one off as originally thought and lingers. People start to become their fantasies fantasy. More extreme changes start to take place in men and women. A man becomes more handsome, then more rugged, then an Uber buff cave man. Perhaps a minotaur? A woman becomes more beautiful, then a bimbo, then a living cartoon. If she meets the minotaur their desires feed off each other and she becomes a cowgirl bimbo cartoon. A man wants to be smarter with a lean physique. But then he wants to become more emotionally intelligent, but his mind equates that to femininity so he becomes a woman. Then his own fear/arousal starts to shape himself into more feminine shapes until he's lost to this new self of pleasure. This would allow for a single narrative following a protagonist, or multiple spin offs with transformations of all sorts and varieties. It would need a single narrative hook Perhaps to ground it. Maybe two people apparently unaffected. One who values their independence so much their dream is to remain constant, the other who's dream is control. Both want to find the source. One to end and possibly roll back these changes to the city and another to control it.

ZOAD: “Bimbuthu”

an old god that turns worshippers into bimbos (obviously inspired by Cthulhu). This one is told like an anthology series, with several short stories featuring different interactions with the Great Hot One. A girl who is bullied in school calls out to Bimbuthu via an old ritual to seek vengeance on her aggressors. She demands that the Great Hot One make the girls act friendly towards her instead of so mean. Unfortunately, as said by either the narrator or Bimbuthu itself “vengeance has a price”. The next moment, the group of girls are in the same room with the girl who called Bimbuthu. An argument breaks out as the girls accuse the bullied girl of doing weird magic stuff to bring them there. As the girls continue arguing none of them notice that they are being transformed into bimbos. When the transformation is complete, all the girls are friends together at a slumber party with no recollection of their past animosity.

DirtyToes: “Spicing Things up “

Spicing Things Up - a couples sex life has gone boring and stale. The husband has turned to porn and while browsing he discovers an advertisement for some magic pills. When you swallow one of these pills, whatever you are thinking about yourself becomes real. Desperate to kick start their relationship again the husband orders the pills. The wife is very skeptical and angry about these pills she finally agrees to take a few pills but only to change a few little things. They couple starts off slow with some small things like making her more adventurous in bed, making her have light exhibitionist tendencies, or making her breasts a little bigger. It truly seems to work and their relationship starts to improve. Things don't go according to plan though when the husband makes a comment about the wife getting addicted to the pills right as she is about to swallow one. From that point on things begin to spiral more and more out of control. The changes start becoming bigger and bigger until the wife is a full on slut/bimbo. I think there are two ways this could go that would be fun. One where the husband keeps egging her on to make the changes and loves every minute of it and one where the husband says it's enough but because the wife is addicted to the pills she starts taking them and changing things behind his back. It could end with the wife being a total slut or dumb bimbo and using the last pill to wish away the addiction. Or to keep the story going the wife could convince a friend to start using them or she could secretly start using them on her husband without him realizing.

Cole Jones: „The mischievous Bimbo Genie”

the main character, who is your usual stereotypical nerd, is constantly bullied by the popular kids at school. They are the usual highschool bully kids like the jocks, cheerleaders, etc. On his way home from school he stumbles upon a weird store that says it sells real magical items. He goes in and while looking around he finds a genie's lamp and buys it. When he gets home he summons the genie who instead of giving him three wishes will give him as many wishes as he wants until either he is no longer entertaining or one of his wishes backfires. And so he uses the genie's magic to get revenge on the bullies in his life by making them all his own bimbo harem.

CalicoNSFW: “Bimbonium”

A new element has been discovered! It's brought to a lab on a remote place, and a small team is studying it. It's not radioactive so they safely manipulate it. What they don't know is it emits strange waves and slowly turns them into bimbos. In just a few days they are full-on bimbos, and when a guy arrives to deliver food, they turn him by making him drink a glass of water with a few grains of bimbonium.
