

DRAWING IS A PAIN

DrayJay Draws a Bear

FOR MATURE AUDIENCES

A few years ago, someone cracked jokes on how I would eventually draw Banjo all curvy because that's just something I'm known for doing... kind of like a serial arsonist of well loved childhood memories. I wanted to live out my life and prove him wrong. But I am under some sort of curse. It was a rainy day and the mood struck just right. Before I knew it, this sketch appeared on my blank canvas. It is mocking me.

I never had the chance to play these games on the N64, so I was limited to the HD remake.

For a low poly design, the game was remarkably executed, and now I've joined the ranks of many who are tormented by the lack of a proper third installment.

Speaking of HD, here's a nice smooth bit of lineart for you to enjoy.

My imagination can be very intrusive while I try to enjoy videogames. The shit I have to put up with. Here are colors btw.

I sure hope there's a point to this.

It was impossible to draw this without hearing that rather iconic "GUH-HUH!" sound in my head. Now you are hearing it in your head too..... Enjoy.

Friends don't let friends fly drunk.