Written by "Ina Izumi"

Laury, a young blonde woman with blue eyes, has been dating more and more frequently with a friend of hers with a slim complexion, tall, and with black hair and black beard that she met online several weeks ago. Despite the dangers that meeting people online and seeing them later in person, Laury is amazed at her new friend, because he is a very attentive and kind person with her, and perhaps he is the partner she has been looking for a long time.

On the other hand, the fact that Laury has become a lonely person in recent years also contributes a lot to the relationship, so she does not frequent other people as much, and that has caused his friend to be one of the few people with which she has been able to socialize in recent times and with some constancy, so little by little he, her friend, has been gaining Laury's trust until, in a few weeks, he became Laury's confidant, which also caused Laury to trust him blindly. At the end of the day, he seems a trustworthy person, attentive and willing to listen to Laury's problems, and she has found those qualities in very few people.

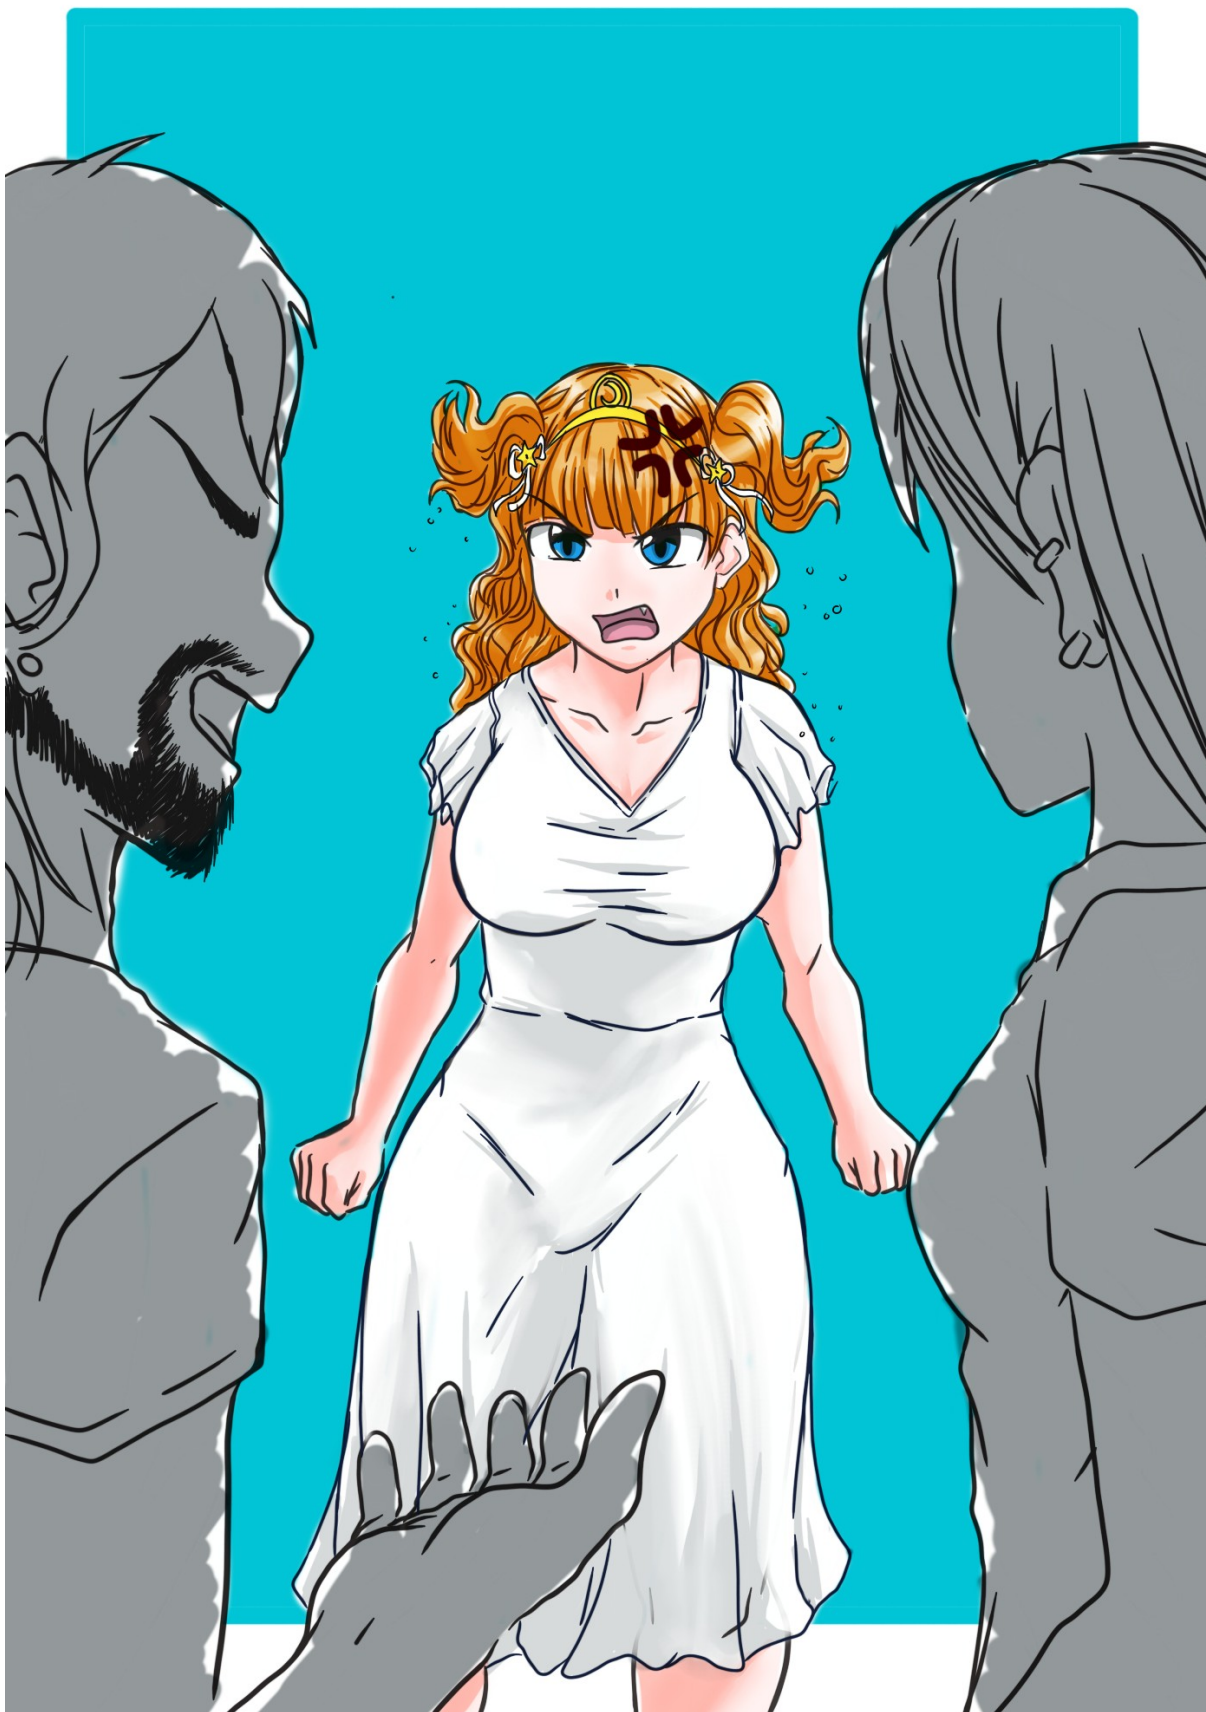

That same day, while Laury thinks how important her new friend has become to her life, she prepares to go to her friend's house for the first time, since he invited her to dinner. That has caused Laury to be very anxious and happy to go and be with him at her house, alone, and maybe take the next step and have a little fun with him, what bad could happen? Thinks Laury as she fixes her hair, just before leaving for her friend's house, as the sunlight begins to fade and dusk progresses.

Then Laury proceeds to leave her house and walk in the orange sunlight, as it gets dark. She has decided to walk to her friend's house, since they live relatively close to her. As Laury is on the way, she continues to think continually and anxiously about what will happen that night. Laury had to insist for a long time to her friend to let her go to her house, that makes Laury begin to have thoughts of fear about the situation, despite the trust that she now has in the friend her. Laury wonders why it took him so long to let her go to his house, could it be that he is just someone very distrustful? Is he hiding something and that is why he refused to invite her to his house? Is he plotting something?

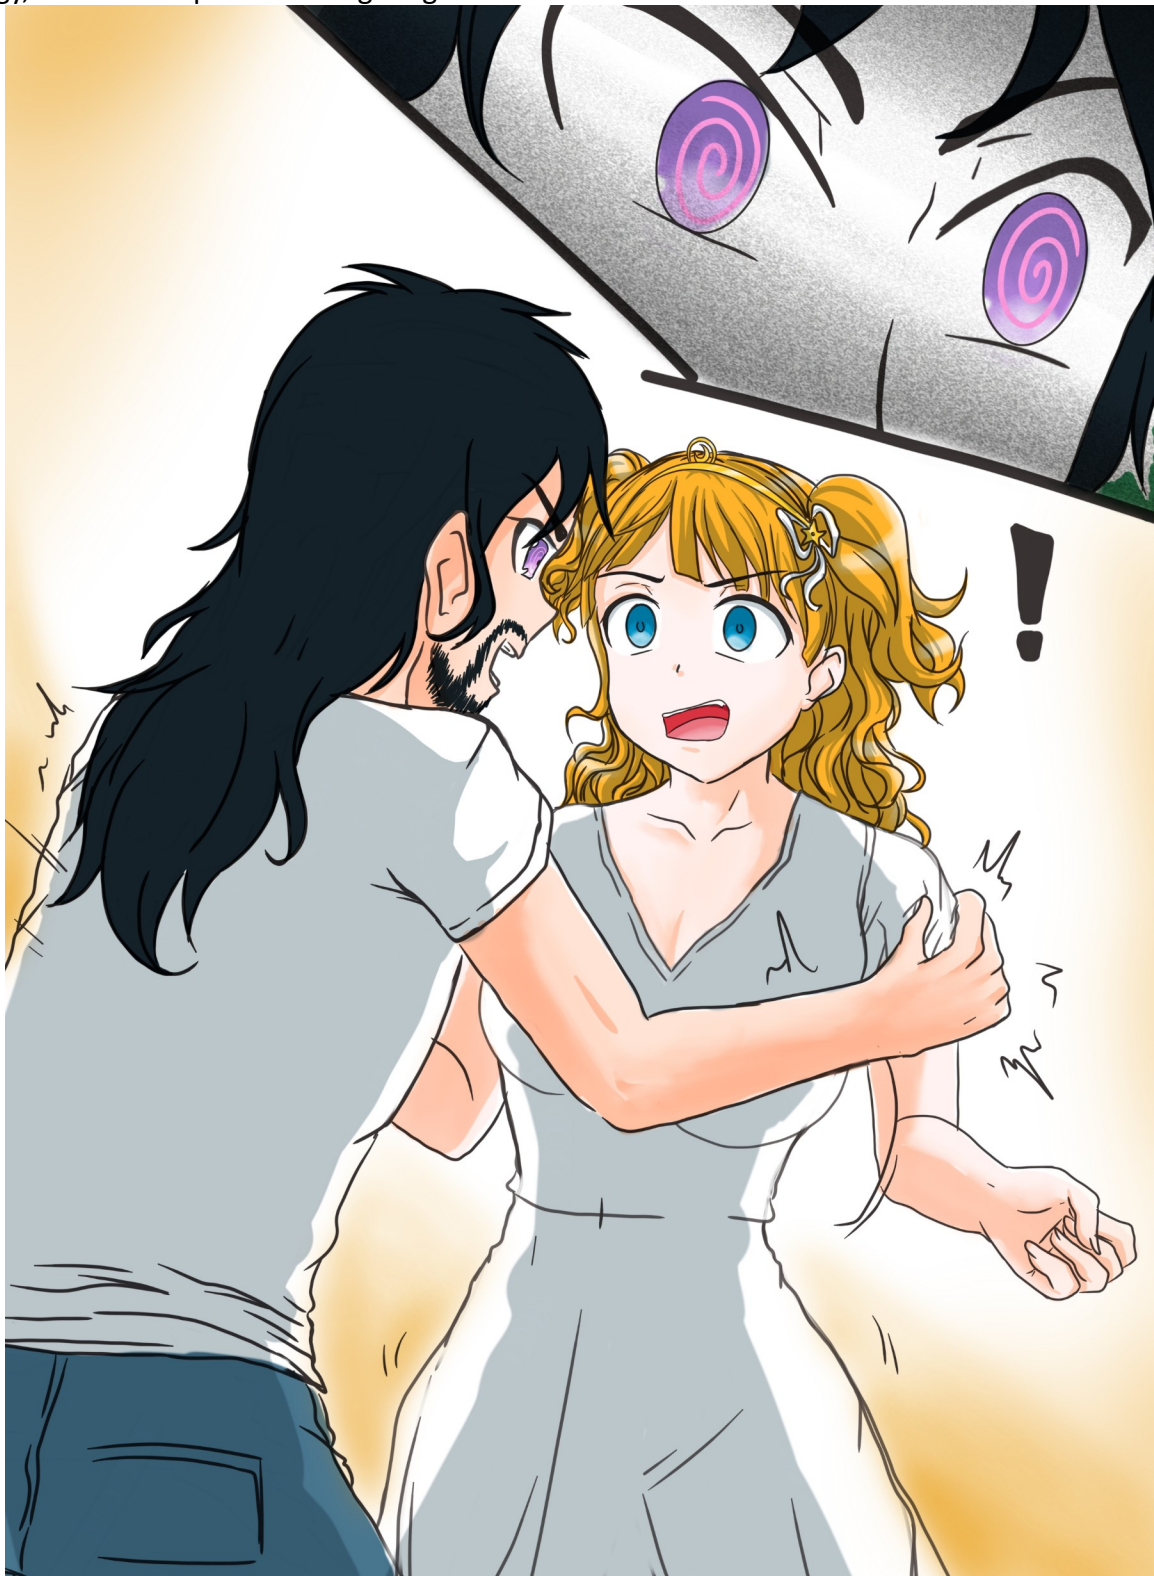

Before Laury could notice, while she was absorbed in her thoughts, she was already in front of the door of her friend's house. Then, just before Laury proceeds to knock on the door, it opens, finding him behind the door, as if he knew when Laury was going to arrive and he was just waiting for her. All this makes Laury worry a little but even with the bad thoughts that Laury had been having and despite her worry, She proceeds to hug him and go inside the house. Then Laury's friend guides her around her house while they talk about irrelevant things like the weather and how long it took Laury to walk, until they reach the dining room, where there is another woman with black hair. Laury immediately becomes jealous and asks him about who she is, to which he replies that she is his wife, and that he would be delighted if the three of them: the man, his wife and Laury, have a loving relationship together.

This has stunned Laury, who quickly rejects the offer and becomes aggressive against the two people. Laury cannot believe what is happening, not only because the man had told Laury that he lived alone, but also because of said man's impudence to make such an offer. That said man has nothing of modesty or decency? Is the man Laury has been meeting over the last few weeks all a sham?

Laury, full of anger and disappointment, proceeds to leave the place, but, to her surprise, That man grabs her shoulders and begins to stare at her with huge eyes. Laury suddenly feels very sleepy, while listening to the voice of the man, which is becoming less and less distinguishable, whispering to her, indicating that he must be obedient and good from now on ... Laury tries to resist while falling into lethargy, but it is not possible to fight against such force.

Later, her breasts begin to bounce up and down over and over again incessantly. Laury inevitably enjoys the experience as he plunges deeper and deeper into her new role as a sex toy for that perverted couple, but on the other hand, something deep inside Laury feels despair and regrets the betrayal who has suffered. Heading to the end of Laury's traumatic but pleasant experience, she is driven by excitement until she is completely unconscious.

After several hours, the man shrink Laury with her metaphysical powers, which, apparently, not only serve to hypnotize someone, but also to transform them into other things and change them in size. The man's wife looks at her husband with curiosity, wondering where he got those powers, which now make him look like a god, but she prefers to keep the question to herself. The couple then place Laury, already cleaned, on a pillow with some of her other toys. That will be the special place to which little Laury now belongs, like a small toy, perhaps the size of a figure, which can be reconverted to its original size when that man wants, to be used again, like the new one small and defenseless toy that is now, and only, Laury, now turned into a doll, whose sole destiny, now, to satisfy her two new masters.
