

Chapter 161 - War Game (2)

Everyone was on the floor around me, unconscious. I wiped the sweat on my forehead and gave a smile. I looked up at the castle and saw some Apollo Family members reluctant to approach.

"When will the captain come?" I shouted to them. They looked pretty annoyed, but I didn't care.

"Hey, Luan, wait!" Then, Bell approached me. But by the time he got here, everything was under control. The only problem was the few people on top of the walls who kept attacking.

"Hell Kaios!" And using a skill, I hit the leg of two of them simultaneously. The men fell to the ground and groaned in pain before passing out. Their legs were severely injured.

'I hope they don't die.'

"What is it?" I finally turned to look at Bell. He wasn't tired despite running at top speed all the way here.

"You should have waited for me. What if they had made some trap?"

"They wouldn't think of something like that; they're dumb. Do you want to play around too, or do you want me to storm those castles alone? The captain is inside, and we win if I defeat him."

"You can go in there if you want; I can take care of things out here."

"Even the people on top of the walls?"

"Yes." Bell nodded with a serious look. I doubted that a little, so I decided to help him. I used the wind control skill and created a strong gale that lifted my body into the sky. Bell was dumbfounded.

Not only his but the Apollo Familia members' expressions also changed.

They started launching attacks toward me, but the wind around my body protected me from everything. I approached the wall at high speed since I now had complete control of the skill and started taking them down one by one.

Many of them were hit by me and already fell from the walls unconscious, but many also managed to escape and jumped toward the ground.

"Bell, take care of them!" After shouting that, I flew towards one of the castle windows.

"Right!" I could hear Bell shouting before disappearing inside the castle.

When I entered, I found a fancy and decorated room. But I didn't look at the details and walked out the door. It was a big place, so it was like a maze; it was pretty tricky to locate myself.

Some people had been sent to deal with me, but even in the small space of the corridors, I managed to defeat everyone efficiently.

"Isn't the captain coming?" I glanced at the window and looked for Bell. I saw him using his knife and fighting fiercely against an unknown man. In a few seconds, Bell managed to hit the man, and he lost his fighting spirit.

Soon after, he attacked another man and, with quick movements, finished him off. He did it naturally. His evolution had been very significant. I have not followed his growth, but I am very surprised.

"There he is!" Some men shouted.

"Take care, Bell." I smiled and pulled out my black sword from my inventory again.

I hadn't used the aura so as not to kill the Apollo Familia members, but I was looking forward to trying it out. We were in a closed place, and maybe we weren't being seen.

The three men approached quickly. Two of them held spears, and one held a short sword. They had hatred in their eyes because of everything I was doing. I was destroying their familia.

I raised the corner of my mouth and put mana into my sword.

Then, an aura started to come out of the sword.

"What's that?"

"Huh?"

"Shit, we need to protect ourselves!"

Realizing it was dangerous, the three men tried to run and hide, but the aura was faster than them.

"GUAR~~"

"ARRGHH!"

"HELP! WHAT IS THAT?!"

When the aura hit them, the three men screamed in despair as the skin on their bodies turned dark. I watched as the three men struggled, and their eyes' glow faded.

Once their lives were taken, their bodies rotted quickly before my eyes, with only their items remaining. Not even a single sign remained that those men had ever existed.

"Wow, that's impressive." I put all the men's items into my inventory, leaving no sign that that battle had ever happened.

'I hope no one saw that.' I took off humming through the castle in search of the captain.

####

I walked around the castle looking for the captain, as I couldn't remember exactly where he was. It was like a giant maze. I kept getting attacked from time to time, and the number of enemies gradually decreased.

I looked again and saw that Bell was also finishing things off outside. There were only a few more enemies for him to face.

"So, where are you, Cilo?" In the original story, he had left his room and gone after Bell to confront him. Will he do that now or focus on me? I'm sure he must be pretty nervous.

But I was in no hurry.

I walked slowly through the corridors.

And then, I heard some heavy footsteps approaching me from behind. I turned around and found two men wearing iron armor. They were armor of superior quality.

"You..." I thought about using my aura to deal with them, but I thought it best not to kill them. Besides, I wanted to destroy their armor. I wanted to test how strong they were.

'Bullshit, I just want to have fun.'

I approached instantly, practically teleported before them, and swung my black sword. My sword hit the armor of one of them and threw him backward. His armor had not been damaged much.

Taking advantage of my closeness, his friend swung his large two-handed sword toward me, but I jumped backward, and his sword hit the ground.

I gave them both a smile that made their bodies shake.

"I will finish this with just one attack and then go to your captain."