

Chapter 130 - Superman.

The wind created a whirlwind around my body. The surrounding trees swayed wildly. After a few more seconds, finally, my magic began to work.

My feet were no longer touching the ground, and I was about a meter off the ground. I opened my arms to balance myself because I couldn't control it well. I sighed and then stood still in the air with my arms open.

"T pose." I let out a loud laugh and then used magic to increase the power of the wind. I continued with my arms open and slowly made my way up. I didn't want to fly so higher than that so as not to be seen.

I stayed still in the air for 5 minutes, a few meters off the ground. I was high enough to see the city in the distance. Hopefully, no one would see me. It would be fun to have an invisibility ability.

But I doubt the system will give me a skill like that.

"Haaa~~ All right, now I'll try to move. The wind is pretty strong." It even seemed to have tornadoes around me. The leaves on the trees were being torn off.

The torn leaves were flying all around me.

"It's a functional skill, but using it in some places can cause problems." Can you imagine activating this skill in the middle of the city? That will probably break all the buildings. I'll have to improve it, but for now, that's enough.

I tried to move. When I moved just a little, I lost control of the wind and "fell" on my back. The tornado threw me upwards. I'm higher than I expected.

The wind whipped hard on my back, and I had difficulty standing up again. I was almost hitting the roof of Rivira. I was so high that I could see all Rivira from up here.

The big problem is that everyone else can see me.

"Haaa~~ Okay, let's try again." This time I moved more carefully and started using the wind around me to move my body forward. I stretched out my arms like Superman and slowly moved forward.

My speed was increasing according to my desire.

"Now that I am so high, the wind does not affect the ground." The tornado was not touching the ground. The tornado was only around my body at the moment.

I needed to make only a few adjustments. And now that probably many people had seen me, I stopped worrying about it and continued flying through the "skies" of Rivira. I was flying at high speed.

Turning to the right or left was tricky, but I got used to it over time. Before I knew it, I was flying masterfully. "I've been flying for only 30 minutes. That's a fantastic development."

And now that I had learned to fly, I had to learn how to land.

I looked for a more open area and flew toward the ground. As soon as I got close, I made the tornado touch the ground again, creating strong wind gusts. The tornado decreased in power, and I slowly descended.

As soon as my feet touched the ground, the wind disappeared completely.

A smile appeared on my face, and I started to jump, celebrating that I had just flown. It was something I had not expected to do so soon. I thought I would have to gain a skill for it.

Honestly, I didn't even know something like this could be possible!

"I have to show this to Lili, maybe I can fly her in my arms around Rivira. I'm sure she'll love this."

####

I went into town in Rivira, and no one talked about what had happened. They hadn't seen me. That's good... One less problem to worry about.

'Not that them finding out about it is a problem... I don't think it will affect anything.' I'm already pretty famous, after all. And even though I am famous, no one has ever tried to get in my way.

I stayed in town for almost half an hour before leaving the dungeon.

And...I heard someone talking about it when I arrived outside.

"Hey, did you hear about the adventurer who were flying in Rivira? I heard some adventurers who came from the lower floors talking about it."

"What do you mean by flying?"

"They said it was an adventurer who was flying around Rivira, that's all. But they don't know who it was, because the person disappeared."

"That's strange... What if it's a monster?"

"They said it had a humanoid appearance even though they couldn't see they face."

"I see... I'm a little jealous of this person, it must be nice to fly around."

"True."

After I finished listening to the adventurers' conversation, I walked away. Then some adventurers saw me and started talking to others about it. This will take a little while to spread among all the adventurers.

Fortunately, they didn't see my face, so I did not have to worry.

"Now I'm going home." It was afternoon (maybe 3 pm?). I went to a small restaurant and ate noodles before going home. When I arrived, Jessica had finished cleaning the house.

"I thought you would be gone longer."

"I went to the dungeon just to test something. And you don't have to worry about me, I've already eaten."

"I see. But I prepared lunch."

"Thank you very much. Leave it to Bell, Lili and Hestia, they will probably be hungry when they get home. I'm going to take a shower now, I'll be right back."

"Right."
