ABOUT THIS SYLLABUS

First of all, thank you for enjoying the YouTube series and for taking a chance on buying this syllabus (or for being a patron!). Every purchase of this syllabus goes towards helping me produce:

- Lexual Does The 80s, The Book
- Lexual Does The 90s, The Youtube Series and Book

I want this guide to be helpful to you and evergreen even after I've moved on to future research topics. I have done my best to include only links that are currently working, but keep in mind some pages may break or disappear over time. This syllabus lists 1,250 books, articles, journal entries, speeches, and videos that will help you go beyond the series and do some research for yourself. Whether you are writing a novel set in the 1980s, writing a term paper, pulling primary sources for a class of students, or just curious, this guide will help. The main points of focus of this series have been black and women's history, two points of view that seldom get the attention they deserve in traditional retrospectives. When reading through these sources, it may be helpful to:

- Note bias and point of view of the author, especially if they have a prolific body of work. Look up the author and know who they are. Even if you disagree with their main points of view and seethe at their literary micro-aggressions (for instance, Gil Troy grinds my gears), think about what perspective or facts they are offering that you did not consider before. Fact check them. Analyze the facts, discard the bias, and form your own opinion.
- Consider how multiple authors/publications view one event. Pull out the common and verified facts and then dig deeper. Also consider how different events are viewed in primary source documents and contemporary secondary sources versus modern essays and articles.
- Dig into the 'why' when you strongly agree or disagree with an author or viewpoint. It will help make your analysis stronger. Seek alternative sources to challenge your (dis)agreement.
- Challenge yourself to find more sources or corresponding events if something strikes your interest. Before you know it, you'll be going down your own research rabbit hole!
- Plug anything in bold into a search engine if you're unfamiliar with the term or person because it/they are important.
- Studying the 1980s with this syllabus and my YouTube series can only be enhanced by taking good notes!

**Five Tips For Your Notes**

- Print out a page or two of small images of recurring people, symbols, or events. Cut and paste them into your notebook next to relevant information.
- Color code your notes! Use different colors for information you already know, information you just learned, information you need to do more research on, and questions that you have. Color code ideologies, places, and people.
- Switch up your handwriting between cursive and print. Also play around with text size and boldness.
- Write big ideas a second time on flashcards, put the main information on the back of each, and quiz yourself on your ability to hit all the points.
- Take notes on the same subject multiple times from multiple sources over a period of time (days/weeks/months) and compare.

BLACK LIFE IN REAGAN'S AMERICA

In the third episode, we explored:

- Black people's increased visibility in sports, pop culture, and politics, as well as the growth of the black middle class, or Buppies, along with their achievements.
- The ways in which the growth in the above areas did not end high poverty, racism, drug use, and crime. In particular, by examining the stories of Arthur McDuffie, The 1980 Chattanooga Riots, Forsyth County, the MOVE Bombing, and multiple murders by white youth in New York, we see how the storied American tradition of white supremacy continued.
- The cultural, social, regional, and ideological differences that made proposed solutions and actions on black issues so diverse. This is examined by contrasting black social and economic conservatives, radical action, looking at responses to policing, crime, and drug use, and understanding the demographic shifts of Black Americans.
- Unemployment rates, crimes for survival, drug use as an escape, and mass incarceration

GROWING UP IN THE 1980S CULTURE WARS

In the fourth episode, we explored:

- The fun parts about growing up in the 1980s.
- The ways in which 1980s kids and teens were exposed to and involved in Rape Culture (Glen Ridge), Bullying (The Legion of Doom) , Homophobia (Ryan White), and other toxic realities like suicide.
- The myths and realities of the Satanic Panic— and how very real threats to youth safety were swept under the rug or made less believable due to accusations of satanic conspiracy theories.
- The ways that parents (and/or conservatives) tried to end perceived moral threats against children and the family— like The Meese Commission on Pornography, Tipper Gore's Parents Music Resource Center, and Jesse Helms' crusade against controversial art— that sparked cultural wars and arguments over the constitutional right to free speech and changed the way we define obscenity.
- The continued effects of conservatism (and backlash to racial diversity, anti-imperialism, and gender equality) on the way that American youth were educated- exemplified by the Stanford Protests and The Closing of The American Mind.

WHAT WAS IT LIKE BEING A WOMAN IN THE 80S?

In the fifth episode, we explored:

- Female achievements in sports, music, and other forms of entertainment
- How the Reagan Administration, the republican party, and the democratic party dealt with the growing political power and participation of women
- The scholarly and cultural achievements of black feminists
- The different feminist beliefs about political organizing, pornography and sex work, beauty politics, and more
- The dating, marriage, and motherhood expectations that were forced onto women, as well as the expectations and experiences of women themselves, depending on occupation, race, politics, and other factors
- Women's rejection of the term feminism despite believing in feminist principles, and a backlash to women's advances that culminated in rape culture, abuse, and violence

AMERICAN PSYCHE

In the sixth episode, we explored:

- The neglect of American mental and physical healthcare access— to our detriment.
- The growing advocacy of deaf, blind, autistic, and other disabled Americans and debates over euthanasia, gene testing, and the quality of life of disabled people
- The ways in which Ronald Reagan ignored or downplayed poverty, mental health, and homelessness, and how liberals and leftists ignored or downplayed the complicated entanglement of the three
- The ways in which poor mental health standards was exhibited by violent crime and exacerbated by a lack of gun control, mental healthcare stigma, and economic stress— and how criminalization of homelessness drove the crime and incarceration rates
- The ways in which White Supremacy and Holocaust Denialism hardened and legitimized into dangerous right wing extremist groups with an increasing mistrust of the government and media
- The media's role in publicizing and sensationalizing these various issues, as well as making room for the average American's shot of 15-Minutes-of-Fame in our increasingly celebrity-focused and conspiracy minded culture.

San Ysidro residents want McDonald's razed

By MARK J. KREIDLER
Associated Press Writer

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. (AP) — Plans to reopen the restaurant where 22 people were slain in the nation's worst single-day mass murder have been put "on hold" following community protests against the idea, a McDonald's Corp. spokesman says.

"Whatever action would be taken is on hold," said Bob Keyser, McDonald's director of media relations. "The concern is for the people, not simply for business."

Keyser added he has "no idea" when the company would make a final decision on the future of the franchise, situated on the main street in this predominantly Hispanic community of 14,000, which is a part of San Diego.

Monetary pledges, meanwhile, poured into a fund set up to help the victims and their families, operators of the fund said Sunday.

Last Thursday, a day after the massacre, McDonald's Corp. spokesman Chuck Rubner said the company wanted to reopen the border-town outlet because, "We don't want to leave an empty shell as a reminder of this tragic incident."

But the plan sparked protests among San Ysidro residents, who want a restaurant razed and replaced with a "Memorial Park for the Innocent" in remembrance of the men, women and children who died at the hands of James Oliver Huberty, 41.

Before he was fatally wounded by a police sharpshooter, the heavily armed Huberty had killed 20 people and wounded 38 more. A 21st victim died Thursday. Eight of the wounded remain hospitalized, their conditions ranging from good to
