

Part-time Job

Written by "Ina Izumi"

After the failure that the girls from Franchouchou, a group of idol zombies, had at the event at the EEF (Tosu's stadium) and Kotaro's deep fall into depression after his failure as the group's producer, Kotaro and the girls found themselves terribly in debt and unable to continue performing as an idol group at events in order to pay the debt since that failure, the biggest one the idol group had so far, has played against their reputation. This situation led the zombie girls to look for other jobs to be able to solve the debt little by little, an objective that was going to take time to be achieved due to the astronomical nature of the debt. In addition, to complicate matters further with the absence of Kotaro, who is now drinking all day due to depression, now the girls have to put the on the makeup themselves to pretend to be living humans.

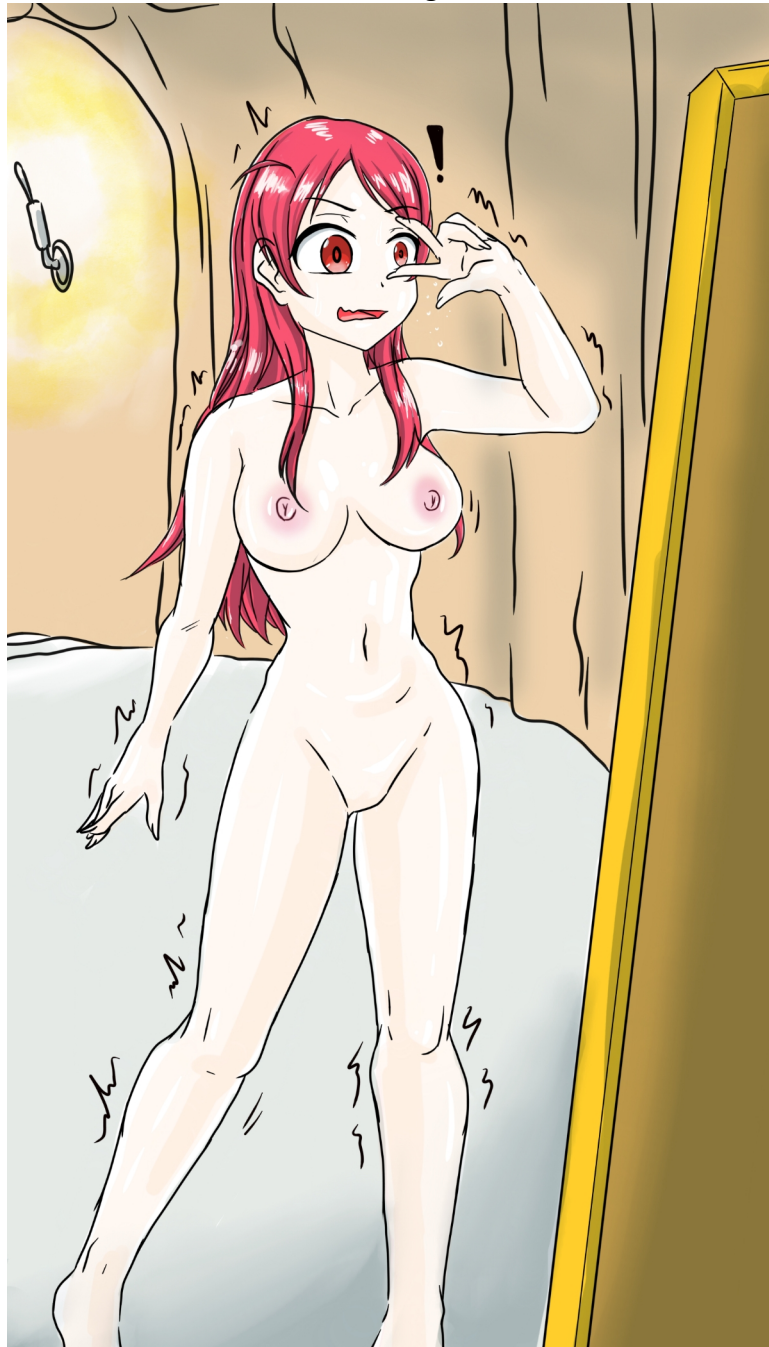

However, this was not an easy task, as they do not have the exceptional talents and knowledge of Kotaro to be able to put on makeup efficiently, so with the poor makeup, they look like very emaciated humans, something that some of the people to Around them, in the respective jobs that each one found, have begun to notice. Sakura Minamoto, the number one member of the zombie girls, constantly thinks of a solution to the failure of the EEF. Sakura thinks every day about how to bring the group back to the presentations in front of the public, just as she thinks every day how to pay off the debt, how to get Kotaro out of depression and, in his absence, how to improve the makeup that the women apply. girls to pass for living humans, all while working in the fields all day taking care of cattle together with Tae, the number 0 member of the group.

One night, in the old mansion in which they live, Sakura locks herself in the basement of the same with a pile of bottles and jars with different substances, makeup, paints and dyes. Sakura does not want the other members of the team to worry about the issue of makeup, since they have a lot of burden working to pay the debt, so she alone will look for some mixture of makeup and paints to achieve a better makeup that makes them go through in a more authentic and credible way. Sakura knows nothing about chemistry, makeup, and she does not have the best luck in the world, being, in fact, followed by a chain of misfortunes throughout her life that led to her death, in addition to having recently been in a deep depression when remembering the events of his past life, but currently Sakura despite all the adversities is very optimistic about the future. She now she has another opportunity to live and achieve her dreams, besides that she is immortal for the moment. What else can happen to him worse than her death?

Then Sakura began to mix in a cauldron, which is over a campfire, various substances of different colors and consistencies and she tried different shades of the resulting makeup on her hand to see which color was the most realistic. Sakura did not skimp on any resources, having substances such as wax, paint of all kinds and with all uses (from walls to shoes), waterproofing and even plastic objects, which melted and homogenized with the mixture due to the high temperature inside the cauldron. Sakura brought with her for the tests that she is doing all the substances that she considers to be of possible use to achieve her goal, because she thinks that nothing will be worse or less credible than the makeup that is currently being applied and that increasingly attracts more suspicions among the inhabitants of Saga.

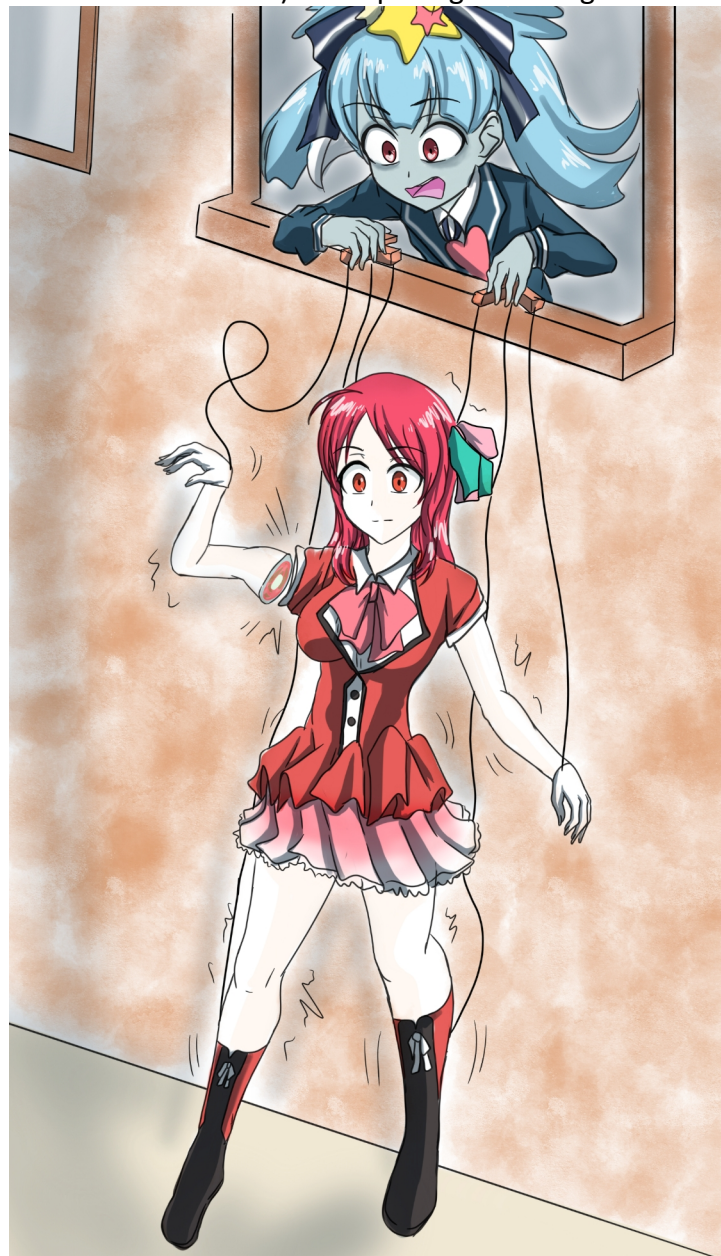

After that, finding the color and consistency that she considered the closest to human skin, she stripped completely and tested the resulting mixture on herself all over her body. In Sakura's opinion, the makeup color looks pretty good, so she doesn't worry about any side effects that such homemade makeup could cause, Being Sakura quite proud of herself. After a few minutes in which Sakura looks in the mirror for several minutes, feeling quite happy with the result, she even covered her vagina with that coating, leaving her entire body smooth and perfect, like that of a doll or a mannequin, but of a quite vivid color and similar to the color that a human being should have or, at least, quite a bit further from the skin color that a zombie like her usually has. Luckily for Sakura, after thinking while looking in the mirror for several minutes in the same position, she discovers that she can no longer move. The makeup that Sakura has created has hardened, turning her into a kind of mannequin.

Sakura feels enormous despair now that she cannot move. She barely and she can shake a little, but she can't ask for help, she only had to wait for her companions to find her from some moment to another, which, fortunately for Sakura, did not take long. Then her companions found her and, seeing the cauldron with the hardened makeup and seeing Sakura standing there, being completely static, they quickly understood that, perhaps, she was experimenting with other makeups and that said experiment ended very badly for her. However, instead of thinking about how to free her from that hardened makeup, the girls, being in a very deteriorated mental state from all the hard work they do for so many hours every day to pay off the debt, end up worrying more about what work she will do. now Sakura in that state while she can't move. Then Lily, the number 6 member of the group, came up with an idea and put Sakura in her idol outfit, tied some ropes to her limbs and climbed on a piece of furniture, trying to use Sakura as a puppet, since she was It happened that they could use Sakura in a puppet show to earn money, but they quickly had to discard that idea, as her body was very rigid and her limbs separated (since she is a zombie ...) when pulling the strings .

After several hours of discussing how Sakura will pay her share of the debt while they figure out how to free her from that hardened makeup coating that has immobilized and trapped her, they have determined that the most logical thing would be to rent Sakura as a mannequin in a clothing store. It is a simple, quiet and easy job. What could go wrong? Sakura's companions thought. The next day, a few hours after sunrise, Sakura found herself wearing lingerie in a clothing store, in a pose that fills her with shame and pains her greatly. With her friends very busy with her working on her, and with Kotaro sunk in indefinite depression, now who can help her?
